AMENDING THE ADMINISTRATION ACT 1903 (WA) TO INCREASE THE STATUTORY LEGACY

Issue

The Law Society of Western Australia is concerned that the legacy for a husband or wife, which may include a de facto partner as defined in the Administration Act 1903 (WA)<sup>1</sup> (the Act), usually referred to as the statutory legacy, is manifestly inadequate leading to hardship in already difficult circumstances for many Western Australian community members whose partners die intestate.

The current statutory legacy in Western Australia is $50,000 or $75,000.<sup>2</sup> This statutory legacy has not been amended since 1982.<sup>3</sup> In order to increase the amount of the statutory legacy it is necessary to amend section 14 of the Act.

Background

If a person's property is not disposed of by a will when they die, that person has died intestate. Intestacy can occur if the person does not have a will, if their will is not valid or if their will only disposes of some of their property. Sections 14 and 15 of the Act provide a statutory scheme for the distribution of the intestate's property. Please see Appendix A.

Attempts at reforming the statutory legacy include the 1990 Law Reform Commission of Western Australia's Project 88 – The Administration Act 1903<sup>4</sup> (the Law Reform Commission Report) and the Report of the Bredmeyer Committee in 2002 (the Bredmeyer Report).<sup>5</sup>

The Law Reform Commission Report noted that in the case of the statutory legacy for widowed spouses whose partners died intestate the provisions of the Act operate by reference to a specified sum of money and that the effect of inflation had reduced these entitlements. The last review of the Act in relation to these entitlements was in 1982, when the basic sums of $50,000 where there are issue, and $75,000 where there are no issue, were fixed.<sup>6</sup>

Historically, the statutory legacy was a means by which the spouse could acquire the matrimonial home. The Law Reform Commission Report noted that on 6 August 1990 the then Premier of Western Australia issued a press release which advised:

The Government intended to introduce legislation seeking to have the basic sum increased from $50,000 to $125,000 and $75,000 to $175,000 respectively and intended to introduce legislation seeking to amend the Administration Act so that future changes to the basic sums in the Table in section 14 could be prescribed by regulation.<sup>7</sup>

The Law Reform Commission Report also recommended a review of the Non-Contentious Probate Rules 1967 (WA) be undertaken. In 2000 the then Chief Justice appointed a committee of legal practitioners under the chairmanship of Master TR Bredmeyer to report on how these Rules could be revised. The Bredmeyer Report also made recommendations for amendments to the Act, particularly in relation to updating the statutory legacy.<sup>8</sup>

The Bredmeyer Report recommended that the statutory legacy be increased to $150,000 and that the Act be further amended to allow the fixing of the amount by proclamation.<sup>9</sup>

In 2019, 29 years later, the statutory legacy remains the same. Nowadays the amounts should be closer to $500,000 to meet the cost of even a modest house.

Throughout Australia legislation prescribing the statutory legacy has been amended in a number of different ways to benefit widowed spouses whose partners have died intestate by either including a minimum statutory legacy, the lowest currently being $100,000, a calculation to ameliorate the effect of inflation or to provide for the prescribed amount to be set by Regulation. Please see the inter-jurisdictional table at Appendix B.

In no other State or Territory of Australia is the statutory legacy as low as it is in Western Australia. The current statutory legacy is simply insufficient where the surviving husband, wife or de facto partner does not have an interest in the residence. This means that the survivor is often put in the position of coming to an arrangement with his or her children and/or stepchildren, or in some cases bringing proceedings under the Family Provision Act 1972.<sup>10</sup> If any of those children and/or stepchildren are minors this further complicates matters as the children cannot reach any agreement without the approval of the Supreme Court.

Therefore, the Administration Amendment Bill 2018 (WA) (the Bill) was introduced in June 2018, with the purpose of amending the Act. The Bill is currently before Parliament. The Bill's proposed amendments set the amount of the partner's statutory legacy at $435,000 where the intestate dies leaving issue, and $650,000 when there is no issue. It also amends the parental statutory legacy, where the deceased has living parents and/or siblings or siblings' issue, but no surviving partner or issue.<sup>11</sup>

7. If the reference base for the Consumer Price Index is changed, regard is to be had only to Index numbers published in terms of the new reference base or to Index numbers converted to the new reference base in accordance with an arithmetical conversion factor specified by the Australian Statistician.
8. An adjustment under subsection (3) is to be made to the nearest whole dollar.
9. In this section –
